

The MLM Business Success Model

Contributed by Gaurav Chitnis
Tuesday, 28 November 2006

So you want to be a Multi Level Marketer, eh...well welcome aboard. An MLM business can be very exciting if it's going in the right direction, but can be very cruel if it goes the other way round. This happens to many people, especially to beginners. Most newcomers are a little skeptical about doing an MLM business.

So you want to be a Multi Level Marketer, eh...well welcome aboard. An MLM business can be very exciting if it's going in the right direction, but can be very cruel if it goes the other way round. This happens to many people, especially to beginners. Most newcomers are a little skeptical about doing an MLM business.

Firstly it is the inexperience of talking to unknown people and trying to sell your products or services. In the beginning it is very easy to be at a loss for words when talking about your business or prospecting somebody and I am sure it has happened to most of us. So how do you go about avoiding it?

Just ask yourself this question: Would you be so nervous and skeptical about your business if you were the owner or president of a large organization. Of course not. So first try to put yourself in that winning frame of mind. It always helps if the person you are trying to pretend is someone you know either personally or someone you admire.

Usually whenever you are faced with a difficult or unknown situation, your mind starts to worry and starts looking for immediate solutions. This might not work since these quick solutions are what got you into these difficult situation. But when you start observing your mentor a little more closely by reading their autobiography, watching their seminars, or studying their training material, you will soon understand how they deal with situations with confidence and determination.

You will then start getting more inspired and lose your inhibitions and skepticism in the process. Your downline will soon start increasing since people like to look up to a confident leader. All the training and and business ideas of your leader will soon become your own since you are always using them in your own practice. You have also learned to add your own input wherever possible.

And above all do not overlook your mentor's hard work and dedication. Your role model hasn't got where he is overnight. Try to model their level of commitment, patience and constant learning ability. Also, do try to treat your MLM business like a regular business and not a part-time or side business. Then in a very short time you will see the fruits of success, as your downline starts increasing and you become a leader yourself.

Gaurav Chitnis is a successful Home Based Business owner and a creative writer in this field. His online business is extremely popular and successful all over the internet since it pays big money very fast without much recruiting. His website is <http://www.cybermoney.ws>

