

Designer Kitchens

Contributed by Bowe Packer
Wednesday, 31 January 2007

The term "designer kitchens" can bring up up many things for many people, the littlest of which is a modern type kitchen. Designer kitchens can be created by the elite of the interior decorating world and thus make them a true blue interior designer kitchen. Or you also have the kitchens which are replicated from the kitchens that grace the homes of celebrities and world renown chefs. However, the designer kitchen in not out of reach for the everyday folks. Then there's the next tier of designer kitchens which to my mind is fundamentally the kitchens which you design for yourself from scratch. Just a little know how, practical application and confidence is all one needs to design their own wonderous kitchen.

{mosbotwordcount}

The term "designer kitchens" can bring up up many things for many people, the littlest of which is a modern type kitchen. Designer kitchens can be created by the elite of the interior decorating world and thus make them a true blue interior designer kitchen. Or you also have the kitchens which are replicated from the kitchens that grace the homes of celebrities and world renown chefs. However, the designer kitchen in not out of reach for the everyday folks. Then there's the next tier of designer kitchens which to my mind is fundamentally the kitchens which you design for yourself from scratch. Just a little know how, practical application and confidence is all one needs to design their own wondrous kitchen.

{bot_wrgoogle}The kitchens that we do ourselves are my favorite form of designer kitchens as they include everything that you could possibly want. However, it mixes and matches your preferences to create the perfect kitchen for you. For instance you may like darker finished wood and want the center island with a sink. If so then with some designer skills you can coordinate and select what looks good and what you desire. This way it's not somebody else's kitchen preferences taking place in your kitchen. Now those are the types of designer kitchens which you ideally want. The ones you have put some energy into designing.

The other type of designer kitchens that are also okay, are the kitchen types of the chefs who know what precisely what is required in the kitchen. But it's still designer kitchens of their own choosing and not your own. Because, I am certain their preferences are much different than yours. What you actually want is something where you can feel comfortable and in which you can spend your time beating up some brilliant creations. It goes without saying, if you are involved with the decisions on the look and feel of your new kitchen, then you will feel relaxed and comfortable in that environment.

Whatever the rest of the world thinks, the fact of the matter is, that you do spend an exuberant sum of time in the kitchen. Especially, if you are the one that likes to cook. For that reason I feel that the kitchen should be someplace you won't mind spending time and someplace where the time will fly without your even being mindful of it. So, the design and decorating should be up to you.

Of course there's nothing to say that your interpretation of the designer kitchens range shouldn't cover everything that's good and great about of all of the other types of designer kitchens. In fact that's part of the greatness of this whole process. The ability for you to plan, design and decorate your own kitchen to have everything you want and not have to adhere to someone else's view of what should ideally be in a designer kitchen.

So go ahead, put your fears aside, get the essentials on the design and decorating elements and design your own kitchen. Include in it everything that you have ever dreamed of having in your kitchen including that state of the art kitchen sink. And after that you can go about revealing to everybody that you have one of your very own designer kitchens. There truly is no need to let them in on the secret though – that you are the design mastermind behind your wondrous interior designer kitchen.

Article Source: www.webraydian.com

Bowe is the webmaster, content provide and author of the ebook: Interior Design Made Easy. Please visit his site at:

<http://www.interiordesignmadeeasy.net>