

Turning Investment Into Residual Income For An Internet Home Business

Contributed by Diep Tran
Wednesday, 02 May 2007

There are different ways to build a passive residual income for an internet home based business. One time investment in of time and money can result in ongoing residual income. Examples are to create a website to capture subscribers, or an auto-responder, an automatic system to send pre-written e-mails to these subscribers.

There are many ways for a person to build residual income. Passive residual income is the type of residual income earned from investments. These investments keep turning a profit and allow a person to do very little work and invest very little time to turn a profit. Making a passive income is easy once a person understands the great ways to turn an investment into residual income.

Passive income involves a one time investment of time or money to earn an ongoing residual income. Some people like to say it is impossible to get money for doing nothing, but that is not completely true. It is very possible for a person to invest in something one time and continue to earn from it. Think about television. Actors spend an initial amount of time preparing for and recording a show, but continue to get paid for it every time it is on television. That is just one example. There are many more out there. A website is a great example of how a person can turn a one time investment into residual income.

A website can be set up to take orders, show products and even answer questions for customers. Optimizing a business website is a way to build passive residual income. Optimizing a website involves adding content and formatting it so that it becomes ranked high by search engines. This can take a little time to do, but once it is done a website will start to get a lot of traffic. By simply optimizing a website a business owner is driving traffic and sales to their website. They do not have to do anything more because the website will handle the rest. Using auto responders is another way. An auto responder is an automated email. When a customer sends an email to the auto responder address they get an immediate answer. Setting up an auto responder is easy and it can help in many ways. If a customer has a question and they send in an email they will be happier with a quick response of an auto responder and less likely to go elsewhere for the product. Auto responders can also be used to send out information, like special offers or sales which can lead to more business as well.

A small investment of time can turn into major residual income. That is what residual income is all about. The ability to spend a few minutes tweaking a website, for example, could turn a struggling business into a thriving one. That is the beauty of residual income. So, in the end it is not really getting money for doing nothing. A person is investing something into the business and they are just earning a lot in return. There is no reason why a person must slave away to see a little profit. That is why residual income seems to be so popular.

Diep Tran is Internet marketer, and webmaster of <http://www.internet-wealth.biz> Internet Home Based Business Ideas and Opportunities.