

Choosing the right Double Glazing company

Contributed by Richard Ashcroft
Friday, 12 October 2007

When we start discussing homes, we are more interested and excited talking about what we have done to our homes. The way we have decorated and maintained the elegance and beauty in our home.

When we start discussing homes, we are more interested and excited talking about what we have done to our homes. The way we have decorated and maintained the elegance and beauty in our home.

We love each and every corner of our dream house and want to talk more and more about it. It gives a fantastic and exuberant feeling talking about the place where we live and spend most of our time. But when it comes to redesigning or remodelling our home, we start to think about what will be best to give it the most attractive and different look.

The most important part is windows and doors, which helps drastically in changing the look of the house. At present, one of the most demanded products are glazing windows and doors. They are extremely efficient, attractive and contribute to the security of the home. But before buying any double glazing we should always do extensive research on the marketplace and keep these things in mind.

Double glazing is very efficient in cutting your heat loss to half. They are highly efficient, in general terms double glazing means two panes of glass placed several millimetres apart in order to form the window having air trapped within. Double glazing also decreases the noise level from outside and eliminates internal condensation.

Before buying double glazing, one should research the marketplace thoroughly for the best deal. Request quotes from as many different suppliers as possible and review the different ranges of double glazed windows and doors. One should compare the price difference from a quality perspective, maintenance and services.

What one should always keep in mind when looking for a double glazing company:

- 1) What services they are offering.
- 2) Are they authorised to sell double glazed products.
- 3) Do they provide maintenance and installation.
- 5) A satisfied customer list with their phone numbers.
- 6) Ensure that they are a member of the Fenestration Self-Assessment Scheme (FENSA), this will mean that they will comply with all relevant UK building regulations.

After deciding which company to use, one should be very clear with the price issue. A detailed price description should be given detailing the double glazing product along with maintenance and installation cost. What will the extra cost be if more work is needed? When the start and end date of the work will be, along with the payment terms and conditions.

When you are discussing payment terms and conditions, you must be clear on how payment is to be taken, either as one payment or on installment. Be sure about everything you are doing. Consult previous customers and take feedback about payment issues.

So if you are interested in converting your windows and doors to double glazing, keep these points in mind and get the best from the market.

Richard Ashcroft is a leading expert in double glazed windows and doors. More information on double glazing products and services can be found at Safestyle Windows.