

A Simplified Tax

Contributed by Ed Howes
Monday, 08 May 2006

People will quickly agree the national income tax should be simplified. This is the core of the problem - that people believe there should be an income tax in the first place.

{mosbotwordcount}

Congress wrangles over the simplification of income tax when in fact, it is and has always been an issue for the volunteers who pay it. Who on earth has any right to the personal information provided on income tax returns? No one but the person who chooses to disclose – or not. Income taxes are appropriate to corporations which (supposedly) exist at the pleasure of states and somehow rule the world. It can never apply to any sovereign individual except they surrender their sovereignty and swear an oath that their personal information as revealed, is complete and correct. Every person who files a signed return at any level of government is witnessing and swearing against him/herself for the purposes of maritime law. You see, the United States is really floating upon two oceans so we come under maritime and contract law. You choose to divulge your most intimate and personal information because “everybody does it.” It is just no big deal. Or is it?

{bot_wrgoogle}The divulgence of this highly personal information is done because it has always been so way back to 1913 and that's good enough for you. If you take a look at the original income tax of 1913, you quickly see what an abomination it has become and how it has expanded to collect data – spy on citizens. So what? Perhaps half the U.S. workforce or more, has been duped into sacrificing personal sovereignty to an employing corporation that is a creation of the state we are supposed to be running.

But it doesn't end there. Withholding taxes, whether weekly or quarterly are the Lord's tithe – the firstfruits. You pay them to your god. If you work for any corporation at half or less of your market value, you have already agreed to send your firstfruits to your god. For this, you can expect to be punished by the god you worship or the one you are trying to hide from.

The national government has unlimited credit. Why should it tax anything or anybody? Because if the surplus currency and bank credit in circulation is not skimmed off in the course of the year, we get inflation, which robs everyone, especially lenders. This is why a private corporation of bank operators, tweak the short term interest rates a quarter point per quarter year. Got to start raking in the excess credit. What does the Constitution say about private interests doing the national banking. It says to promote the general welfare. It is good for the people to have foxes guarding the hen house. That's what the Constitution people defend with their lives, says. Steal from the poor and give to the rich. It is good for the people and they will go along with it all because we will keep them too busy to read or study such matters. They have become our god, demand our worship and get it from our paychecks and tax returns. We pay for what we want. The atheist worships this god, the Jew, the Catholic, the Evangelical, the Hindu, Buddhist and Muslim worship this god, in the West. Some Arabs seem to have a strenuous objection to worshipping this god and blow their selves up in protest. Our money has become our chief object of affection and we hire thieves to manage it for us. We kill and terrorize the people who don't agree with us. Then we pat ourselves on the back saying, good job, what?

Abraham Lincoln and John Kennedy wanted to have honest money and intended to create it. Someone changed their minds. For 140 years and longer we have been playing the game with Monopoly money – literally. Give us your freedom and we'll give you a job. Who can resist an offer like that? Only someone who should not be investing in the status quo because everybody does it, so it's A OK. It is a betrayal of whoever does not worship the money god, as Osama tells us. It is a betrayal of your brother or sister who objects to the way we are being used by the rich to get richer. It is an insult to all the people of the earth who have rejected the money god, when given a choice. But hey! Screw them all if they can't take a joke. We are with them in spirit. And that is the lie that condemns one with their own words, spoken or thought. We have masters who reap where they do not sow. Hard masters - unjust and unmerciful.

The governments have turned their selves over to their corporate creations and no one is supposed to notice. Corporations choose candidates for the most popular parties and elect them. The people vote their approval of the corporate process. The corporate masters write the laws we are expected to obey. They choose the wording, send their agents to targeted politicians and simply say, we would like this law passed. The politicians say OK and one submits the bill. The others vote to approve it. Can democracy get any simpler than this?

The fix is in and has been from the good old days when daily life was a struggle for most folks. We have kept very busy through the centuries and - look at all the wonderful works that have come of it! Who has the nerve to say government of the people, by the rich, for the rich, is not the perfect path to world peace?

Ed Howes sought and found, knocked and entered. Now he sees things differently. To see more of what he sees, please visit <http://www.justanotherview.com> or do an author search here at Webraydian. Readers grow: wiser, better, faster.